All In, Loving God

Matthew 22: 36-40

I know some of you are terribly disappointed that we will not be reopening our sanctuary for worship this Sunday. This was not an easy decision to make but as the number of Covid cases continued to rise, we felt it necessary in order to protect one another and prevent any spreading of the disease within our congregation. Our scripture lesson for this week tells us that we are to love our neighbors as ourselves. The loving thing to do for our neighbors and our friends is to stay home as much as possible and to wear masks whenever you leave your home, wash your hands often, and take care of yourself, so that you do not become infected and spread it to your neighbor.

All our plans for reopening are still in place and we will implement them once the rate of spread has decreased for a reasonable period of time. In the meantime we will continue to worship online, and will be looking at others ways we can connect with one another. See the information below about our Sunday evening outdoor service. The experts indicate that the possible transmission of the disease is greatly decreased outdoors.

Looking forward to seeing you soon,
Rev. Sharon
