Psalm 119:105-112

This Sunday we will begin a new series entitled: "What are you Doing?" This week we explore the idea of walking in the dark.

In our scripture reading from Psalm 119, the writer is going through a very difficult time. He states that God's word is a lamp to his feet. He has taken an oath to follow God's law. Yet, if he does that, he is seriously risking his life. He believes others are plotting against him. He knows being faithful to the vows he has made may cost him his life. If he fulfills his vows, he fears it will result in condemnation and persecution. He says the wicked have laid a trap for him.

We are so blessed to live in a nation where we have the freedom to worship. Of course, even though we proclaim we are one nation under God, we know that we are a people of many different religions and many different gods. And, while at times it is a struggle, we do have the freedom to worship our God. We can come to church, study our Bibles and proclaim our faith freely without fear.

This Sunday we will observe World Communion Sunday and we will remember that there are people all over the world who suffer persecution for their faith. They literally are taking their life in their hands in order to worship God and to follow the scriptures. We pray that God will give them strength, protect them and will shine a light on their path.

Exercise your freedom to worship...either in person or online.

See You Sunday!
