HONOR YOUR MOTHER

EXODUS 20:12

Honor your father and your mother...this is one of the Ten Commandments. This coming Sunday is Mother's Day, a time when we honor and remember our mothers.

My mother was a teacher and my brother and I were not always receptive to the lessons she shared with us. She had a few lectures that became routine and we actually numbered them. The lecture about keeping our rooms clean and neat was #5. The lecture about being honest was #1. The lecture about being kind and understanding of others was #2. There were so many, I must admit, that we totally tuned out.

For mother, cleanliness was indeed next to godliness and everything had to be sparkling clean, and every drawer and closet organized. Apparently, I learned that lesson, my brother, not so much. I believe we both learned the lesson about caring for others. Neither of us would be who we are today were it not for the example, lessons, and love our mother provided. My brother and I were blessed to be raised by our mother and I only wish she was still here so I could tell her how much I learned from all those lectures that I pretended not to hear.

I hope you were also raised by a loving, caring mother and that you tell her how much she means to you on this Mother's Day, and often throughout the year. If you were not so blessed, I'm truly sorry and hope that there was someone else who filled that role; an aunt, grandmother, or teacher. Whoever, played that role in your life, please take this time to tell them how much their presence means to you.

Honor your mother...or the person who filled that role in your life.

See you Sunday on the Web...phumc.net or on Facebook.

May God continue to keep you safe,
Sharon
